Liquidity: For very short term parking of surplus or emergency corpus
 Core: Ideally forms bulk of your allocation – Funds that focus on high credit quality and low to moderate maturity profile
 Satellite: Funds that can take higher risk – either duration risk or credit risk or both
 Target Maturity Index Funds are excluded from this framework owing to their fixed tenure and passive management.
 We have created a simple framework for segregating the schemes depending on their risks. The framework is constructed around allocating across 3 three buckets: Liquidity, Core, and Satellite; each bucket meeting a specific need. Within these buckets, we have different offerings with different minimum investment horizons that can further aid decision-making.

EQUITY OUTLOOK

Nifty closed June up 1.4%, supported by easing geopolitical tensions, lower crude prices and policy initiatives aimed at boosting foreign capital inflows. While mid-caps remained broadly flat, small caps gained 4%. Banking, Realty and Healthcare outperformed, whereas IT stocks led the decline following weaker global demand visibility and concerns around technology spending.

Equity markets appear well placed in the near term, aided by attractive valuations and improving macro cues around geopolitics, NRI deposits and gold imports. Domestic cyclicals are expected to lead in this phase. Over 3–5 years, returns are likely to broadly track nominal GDP.

Getting Better: A Bond And Macro Update

To recap, a useful lens with which to view India's bond market till very recently has been that of the so called "impossible trinity". Thus, weaker capital flows leading to currency pressures have effectively led to tightening of domestic financial conditions reflected in rising yields, despite rate cuts and benign RBI commentary. In our view, weak capital flows despite sound domestic macros in turn have been owing to:

1. Higher global rates
2. Alternate themes attracting global capital, chiefly AI.
3. More recently, the West Asia war.

There have been 2 recent developments that are unequivocally positive in this context:

1. Focussed recent measures from government and RBI (including the subsidised FCNR deposit scheme and government bond tax exemption for FPIs) which are material both in form and intent shown. Thus, they will for the time being alleviate pressure from the currency and considerably ease funding stress from balance sheets. Foreign fund flow into government bonds is already improving, likely partly reflecting the more constructive near-term rupee view and, significantly, the tax exemptions on government bonds. Importantly, policy makers have voiced keenness to continue exploring additional measures to strengthen capital flows into the country. This is important because the FCNR window constitutes temporary funds flow from abroad which will reverse when the deposits mature. Therefore, the time that this provides must be utilised optimally to ensure that more sustainable capital flow measures can be put into place.
2. With the cessation of war, oil prices have corrected significantly, with Brent almost exactly back to pre-war levels at the time of writing. This so far is contrary to commonly held views that the floor price on oil will move higher even after the war, given the need to rebuild inventories. There has been similar relief in urea prices as well. These have led to expectations on both inflation and government subsidy bill being scaled down.

From a monetary policy standpoint, these developments push further out any expectation of rate hikes with the market currently debating whether any hikes at all will be required or not. We are somewhat open on this: we don't expect any move in August but for now aren't sure whether any hike expectations should be altogether dispensed with. To be clear, however, whether these hikes eventually come or not currently has very little bearing on our portfolio strategies (more on this below). This is because almost nothing barring the very front end is being priced off the repo rate currently, even after the recent fall in yields. Thus, one can be constructive on the market purely on the basis of the 2 large developments outlined above without immediately deciding on rate hikes. Suffice to say that should these benign developments hold 1> we don't expect more than 50 bps of hikes in total, 2> we don't expect them to start before October.

For more sustained relief on market yields, however, we may also need global rates and the AI theme to start to cool off a bit. Here the news is somewhat mixed as of now. On the one hand, the first Fed meeting of the new Chair was perceived to be hawkish and has led to some repricing higher in US rates as well as in the dollar index. On the other, and without claiming any iota of expertise in the matter, we note that the AI commentary seems to be turning a bit more mixed lately. Thus, the costs of build out and consumption, alongside rising supply of market issuances (both equity and bonds) to fund capex, seems to be gaining more attention than before. We will watch with interest if the power of this theme on global capital flows abates somewhat so that some alternate investment destinations can also lay a bit of claim.

Portfolio Constructs

With near term risks abating, we remain constructively positioned across portfolios. Our preference remains for up to 3 – 4-year points on the corporate curve and 14 years and beyond on the government bond curve. With our own view changing on quantum of rate hikes, and with a gush of liquidity waiting around the corner from FCNR flows, we are now comfortable with the idea that yield curves may be steeper than what we thought before. However, the portfolio construct as described here allows for this, while ensuring enough duration participation via the government bond curve. Looked at differently, the two casualties during the worst effects of the impossible trinity have been corporate bond spreads and term spreads, the latter specifically for the government bond curve. Thus, positioning at front end points on the corporate curve (including bank CDs) and back-end points on the government bond curve allows participation in both themes as the respective stress unwinds. Even after the recent fall in yields, valuation across a host of market rates remain comfortable considering the developments as described above. At the time of writing, and while retaining full flexibility on potential future changes in views and portfolio constructs, we are quite comfortable running overweight market risk while monitoring unfolding developments both on global macros and India policy.

The importance of 'FIRST PRINCIPLES' when investing in DEBT MUTUAL FUNDS

Suyash Choudhary,
CIO – Fixed Income

Identifying Risk in Debt Mutual Funds (MFs)

- Interest rate risk

Risk of loss owing to changes in interest rates. This risk is best captured by the duration of the fund.

- Credit risk

Risk of loss owing to change in credit profile of an issuer that leads either to a downgrade or default.'

Identifying own risk profile

Since mutual funds cannot guarantee returns, it is very important to appropriately identify one's own risk profile while deciding where to invest. If one wants a risk profile that is the closest to a fixed deposit, one has to choose a debt fund that controls both the interest rate and credit risk.

The First Principles Requirements from a Mutual Fund (MF)

Remember to look for one where majority of the investments are liquid; which means that the fund manager should be able to sell them at least in ordinary market conditions.

Some False Premises

There are some false premises in debt fund investing that one should be aware of:

MFs can manage liquidity via exit loads

In many cases chiefly for credit risk funds, because a significant part of the portfolio consists of illiquid securities, the fund manager relies on suitable exit loads to deter redemption. In some sense, some sort of an asset liability management (ALM) framework is used. So asset maturity is in 'buckets' basis the exit load periods of investors. Exit loads are no doubt a large detriment for redeeming from a mutual fund. However, by no stretch of the imagination can they be relied upon as a sufficiently high detriment. As has already been shown in the Indian market as well, if the investor concern is strong enough, she can pay exit load and redeem.

Even AAA can default, so why bother?

Recent events have evoked this response in certain quarters. As an admittedly extreme analogy this is somewhat akin to saying food can sometimes make you choke, so why eat! The probability of AAA defaulting is negligible. This has been proved with data over multiple decades. This doesn't mean it can never happen. However, to use a once-in-a-blue moon default and paint a general principle is not advisable at all. Also with some due diligence, the weaker AAA can be generally weeded out by the fund manager in most cases.

Conclusions

The attempt here has been to highlight some first principles that will hopefully serve well when making allocations to fixed income mutual funds. Some of the key takeaways are summarized below:

1. Investors should first be aware of individual risk profile. Assuming debt investments are first made for conservatism, a majority of allocations should be to full AAA funds in the low duration / short term / medium term / corporate bond / Banking PSU categories.
2. Credit is a risk just like interest rates are. It can lead to both positive as well as negative outcomes. The key is to allocate to both credit and duration in the so-called 'alpha' bucket' and not in the core debt allocation bucket.
3. An open ended debt mutual fund should first and foremost fulfill the criterion that a majority of its portfolio should have liquidity and price discovery via the open market. This enables seamless redemption management, consistency in portfolio profile even with inflows and redemptions, and the discovery of NAV that is largely accurate.
4. A lot of discussion on credit revolves around quality of manager and depth of research process. What is equally important, however, is to ask this: Is the nature of risk being taken consistent with the vehicle being used to take the risk? More specifically, are open ended mutual funds the appropriate vehicle to take on such positions?

This scheme has exposure to floating rate instruments and / or interest rate derivatives. The duration of these instruments is linked to the interest rate reset period. The interest rate risk in a floating rate instrument or in a fixed rate instrument hedged with derivatives is likely to be lesser than that in an equivalent maturity fixed rate instrument. 8nder some market circumstances the volatility may be of an order greater than what may ordinarily be expected considering only its duration. Hence investors are recommended to consider the unadMusted portfolio maturity of the scheme as well and exercise adequate due diligence when deciding to make their investments

This scheme has exposure to floating rate instruments and / or interest rate derivatives. The duration of these instruments is linked to the interest rate reset period. The interest rate risk in a floating rate instrument or in a fixed rate instrument hedged with derivatives is likely to be lesser than that in an equivalent maturity fixed rate instrument. Under some market circumstances the volatility may be of an order greater than what may ordinarily be expected considering only its duration. Hence investors are recommended to consider the unadjusted portfolio maturity of the scheme as well and exercise adequate due diligence when deciding to make their investments.

Past performance may or may not be sustained in future. Income Distribution and Capital Withdrawal are assumed to be reinvested and bonus is adjusted. Load is not taken into consideration. To illustrate the advantages of SIP investment, this is how your investment would have grown if you had invested say ₹10,000 systematically on the first business Day of every month over a period of time. Returns are calculated by using XIRR approach. XIRR helps in calculating return on investment given an initial and final value and a series of cash inflows and outflows with the correct allowance for the time impact of the transactions. The performances given are of regular plan growth option. Regular and Direct Plans have different expense structure. Past performance may or may not be sustained in future. Income Distribution and Capital Withdrawal are assumed to be reinvested and bonus is adjusted. Load is not taken into consideration. To illustrate the advantages of SIP investment, this is how your investment would have grown if you had invested say ₹10,000 systematically on the first business day of every month over a period of time. Returns are calculated by using XIRR approach. XIRR helps in calculating return on investment given an initial and final value and a series of cash inflows and outflows with the correct allowance for the time impact of the transactions. Past performance may or may not be sustained in future. Income Distribution and Capital Withdrawal are assumed to be reinvested and bonus is adjusted. Load is not taken into consideration. To illustrate the advantages of SIP investment, this is how your investment would have grown if you had invested say ₹10,000 systematically on the first business day of every month over a period of time. Returns are calculated by using XIRR approach. XIRR helps in calculating return on investment given an initial and final value and a series of cash inflows and outflows with the correct allowance for the time impact of the transactions. The performances given are of regular plan growth option. Regular and Direct Plans have different expense structure. Direct Plan shall have a lower expense ratio excluding distribution expenses, commission expenses etc. [#]Benchmark Returns. ^{}Additional Benchmark Returns. Data as on June 30, 2026.

How to read Factsheet
Fund Manager An employee of the asset management company such as a mutual fund or life insurer, who manages investments of the scheme. He is usually part of a larger team of fund managers and research analysts. Application Amount for Fresh Subscription This is the minimum investment amount for a new investor in a mutual fund scheme. Minimum Additional Amount This is the minimum investment amount for an existing investor in a mutual fund scheme. Yield to Maturity The Yield to Maturity or the YTM is the rate of return anticipated on a bond if held until maturity. YTM is expressed as an annual rate. The YTM factors in the bond's current market price, par value, coupon interest rate and time to maturity. SIP SIP or systematic investment plan works on the principle of making periodic investments of a fixed sum. It works similar to a recurring bank deposit. For instance, an investor may opt for an SIP that invests Rs 500 every 15th of the month in an equity fund for a period of three years. NAV The NAV or the net asset value is the total asset value per unit of the mutual fund after deducting all related and permissible expenses. The NAV is calculated at the end of every business day. It is the value at which the investor enters or exits the mutual fund. Benchmark A group of securities, usually a market index, whose performance is used as a standard or benchmark to measure investment performance of mutual funds, among other investments. Some typical benchmarks include the Nifty, Sensex, BSE200, BSE500, 10-Year Gsec. Entry Load A mutual fund may have a sales charge or load at the time of entry and/or exit to compensate the distributor/agent. Entry load is charged at the time an investor purchases the units of a mutual fund. The entry load is added to the prevailing NAV at the time of investment. For instance, if the NAV is ₹100 and the entry load is 1%, the investor will enter the fund at ₹101. Note: SEBI, vide circular dated June 30, 2009 has abolished entry load and mandated that the upfront commission to distributors will be paid by the investor directly to the distributor, based on his assessment of various factors including the services rendered by the distributor. Tracking Error A divergence between the price behavior of a position or a portfolio and the price behavior of a benchmark Exit Load Exit load is charged at the time an investor redeems the units of a mutual fund.	The exit load is deducted from the prevailing NAV at the time of redemption. For instance, if the NAV is ₹ 100 and the exit load is 1%, the redemption price would be ₹ 99 per unit. Modified Duration Modified duration is the price sensitivity and the percentage change in price for a unit change in yield Macaulay Duration The Macaulay duration is the weighted average term to maturity of the cash flows from bonds. In other words, it is the weighted average number of years an investor must maintain a position in the bond until the present value of the bond's cash flows equals the amount paid for the bond. Standard Deviation Standard deviation is a statistical measure of the range of an investment's performance. When a mutual fund has a high standard deviation, it means its range of performance is wide, implying greater volatility. Sharpe Ratio The Sharpe Ratio, named after its founder, the Nobel Laureate William Sharpe, is a measure of risk-adjusted returns. It is calculated using standard deviation and excess return to determine reward per unit of risk. Beta Beta is a measure of an investment's volatility vis-a-vis the market. Beta of less than 1 means that the security will be less volatile than the market. A beta of greater than 1 implies that the security's price will be more volatile than the market. AUM AUM or assets under management refers to the recent / updated cumulative market value of investments managed by a mutual fund or any investment firm. Holdings The holdings or the portfolio is a mutual fund's latest or updated reported statement of investments/securities. These are usually displayed in terms of percentage to net assets or the rupee value or both. The objective is to give investors an idea of where their money is being invested by the fund manager. Nature of Scheme The investment objective and underlying investments determine the nature of the mutual fund scheme. For instance, a mutual fund that aims at generating capital appreciation by investing in stock markets is an equity fund or growth fund. Likewise, a mutual fund that aims at capital preservation by investing in debt markets is a debt fund or income fund. Each of these categories may have sub-categories. Rating Profile Mutual funds invest in securities after evaluating their creditworthiness as disclosed by the ratings. A depiction of the mutual fund in various investments based on their ratings becomes the rating profile of the fund. Typically, this is a feature of debt funds.
